Theme this month: Flying (travel) Again

Hi Everyone,

With the constant changes in our travel rules due to Covid, it can be challenging to plan making a trip and knowing it will actually happen.

To celebrate the fact that I was able to "Fly again" to visit my daughter in Adelaide, I have decided that that is our theme for May.

Flying geese units in some form seem a natural choice to create a row for this month—here a few inspiring ideas I found to start you thinking.

If using flying geese, try something you have not made before.

You may think of travel as air, road or water (here are some other images that you can check out) and for you in may be local, in your own state or across borders—there are many options opening up again to allow us to move around more freely and for this I am extremely grateful.

When you think of this theme, look at what it means to you—it could be as simple as visiting family local to you for those hugs and catch ups.

You may think of the theme in terms of camping and weekend get-aways, visiting the beach, a river or simply quiet times to read a book.

There are many wonderful patterns to search out if you need that help, or take a photo or drawing of your own and turn that into your inspiration or pattern .

Have fun thinking about the freedoms to be Flying (or travelling) again. I look forward to see your results.
