

Cupboard to Creativity 2020

November Update.

Hi Everyone,

Where did November go? I hope you had more time than I did this month to work on your challenge.

So many people around me are saying the same thing—this year with all its craziness seems to have gone really fast.

I know I only managed a small project this month, but I did manage to get it done in time.

I have ideas to change some of the border now that it is together, but that may have to wait a few days, so I have posted here the original border & will amend the pic when I have changed it:)

There have been some charity quilts finished this month & I do thank Vicki for quilting this one for me, and thank you Brenda Wood for the fabric donation used in this one. →

My next update will be after Xmas, so I do hope you have enjoyed the border challenge this year, and will be ready for something new in 2021.

Take Care.

Jan P.
