

Cupboard to Creativity 2022

November Update.

Hi Everyone,

We have now reached the last part of the challenge for 2022.

I managed to make this month a bright gifting quilt with the Nov block, and I used the 6 squares per row option for the checkerboard part.

You will notice that the alternate corners are a different colour when using an even number of squares. In the quilt lay the blocks so the corners are the same way up.

If using the 9 square option (or any odd number) all corner squares would have been the same fabric.

I hope you have had fun playing along throughout the year, and that you now have added to your bank of ideas to use in future quilts.

For December, I allow time to complete things you may have started and need a bit more time to finish.

It is also a busy time of year with school break-ups, end of year celebrations, and preparations for Xmas, so we don't need an extra challenge to throw into that mix.

I wish you all a Merry Christmas and a wonderful Happy New Year.

Enjoy your family & friends, and I will be back with a new challenge in Jan 2023.

Best Wishes

Jan P
