

Cupboard to Creativity 2023

April Update.

Hi Everyone,

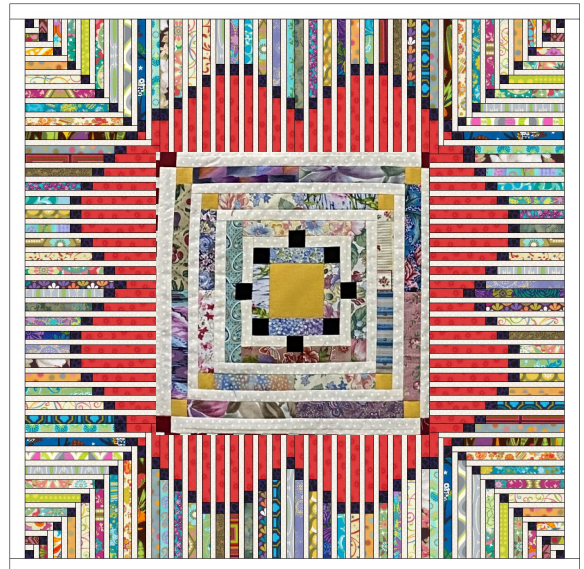

As we are now starting to head into cooler weather here in Brisbane, I hope you are still able to find time to quilt, maybe a little hand sewing whilst you stay warm.

Over the past month I have been busy with family things and my quilting, and with the April Challenge, I changed plans part way through as I discovered I would not have enough of the cream fabric to make the larger design.

I have yet to decide what the quilt will end up as—currently 37" square, so I will no doubt add more to it to make a practical size.

As I was making this design I realised it would not suit anyone who has visual sensory issues, as I found the stripes a challenge if I worked on it for too long.

You will notice that I made different corner blocks by adding a "leaf" image within the structure, and I also planned several other ideas using this concept of "Broken Image" - maybe I'll try the larger size for the next one.

I hope you have had fun playing with straight strips to create a curved Broken Image.
