

Cupboard to Creativity March Update 2024

Hi Everyone,

Here we are at Easter for 2024—the year seems to be going quite quickly but I am grateful I have still found time to quilt:)

With a little bit cooler weather & even some rain this week, it has been great sewing weather.

Last month I made a quilt for a nephew's new baby girl & I can now share that as they have received it.

This past month I have managed to make 2 sample tops for the March challenge using the 1:2 ratio rectangles, one more traditional and the other more modern, with a third designed using all plain fabrics which is only partly constructed so I will share that one next month.

The rectangles I have used for both my designs are cut 2" x 3½" and where needed to complete a row I used some 2" cut squares. My quilt without the border is 36" x 54" however the quilt if you changed the size of the rectangles would very quickly become 48" x 72" and with a couple of borders that is a single bed size. You could also add more rectangles to width or height to suit your individual needs.

I hope you have had fun playing with rectangles.

Have a
Happy
Easter
Everyone.

Jan P.
