

Cupboard to Creativity May Update 2024

Hi Everyone,

It has been a busy month here — In between the family times and class sessions, I decided to hand sew my blocks to the backgrounds, and there are a number of them so I have not quite completed the quilt I planned for this month — almost there though!

I have just allowed this project to grow as I was playing with a jelly roll and charm squares (then added some plains) to see what different combinations and styles of the pointed Dresden plate I could make, and now have just one more block to complete this quilt and finalize the design.

I have made notes on how I created each block—some were created from left overs of the first two I made, and the smaller backgrounds were from the cut away sections of the larger designs.

My plan is to add more stitching to parts of the blocks, so I will up date you when the top is completed.

I hope you have had fun playing with your dresden plate design.

Until next month,

Happy stitching

Jan P.
